Recent Representative Consulting Work

1. Pelican Island National Wildlife Refuge Island Stabilization, and Upland, Freshwater and Marine Wetland Restoration. Sebastian, Florida. 90% complete at this point. Project Responsibilities: Design, permitting and supervision of the delivery and placement of 250 tons of fossil oyster shell via helicopter as a breakwater to protect and eventually restore the Pelican Island National Wildlife Refuge (the first established in 1903) as consultant to the US Fish and Wildlife Service. Required mapping of seagrasses in advance to avoid impact and understanding the history of erosion on the island and applying this information combined with an understanding of local, state and regional regulations to meet a one week window of opportunity during 2001. Permits issued on time, project conducted successfully, erosion stopped, island now expanding. 600 acre freshwater wetland/terrestrial restoration site design and assistance with permitting.

26. Consulting for ChevronTexaco Oil Company. 1998-2003. Tasks included assisting the ChevronTexaco Remote Sensing Group with mapping mangroves and associated wetlands in the inshore oil fields in the Niger Delta in Nigeria, in the vicinity of the Escravos facilities on the Escravos River. Additional tasks included working with the Nigeria Environmental Change Program to document changes in freshwater and marine wetland cover over time and to determine what the causes were, and what restoration could be accomplished. Finally a mangrove mitigation program covering 10 sites and totaling several hundred hectares was developed, and a pilot mangrove mitigation program undertaken to offset wetland losses due to the construction of the Escravos Gas to Liquids (EGTL) plant facility under construction at Escravos. Ten trips including aerial photography overflights, field work and ground truthing of vegetation types were completed during this time period. All tasks were completed on time and within budget.
